

VaultFunder Competition Terms

Vault Funder is a proprietary trading firm that offers funding to traders who pass their evaluation process. A challenge account with Vault Funder refers to a trading account provided by Vault Funder to traders who wish to qualify for their funding program.

Here's how it typically works:

Application: Traders apply to Vault Funder's program and select a challenge size based on the amount of capital they aim to manage.

Challenge Period: Once accepted, traders are given a set period, usually 30 days, to trade a demo account with specific rules and conditions set by Vault Funder. These rules often include restrictions on maximum daily drawdown, maximum position size, and prohibited trading strategies.

Performance Evaluation: During the challenge period, traders must meet certain performance targets, such as achieving a specified profit target while adhering to the given risk parameters.

Evaluation by Vault Funder: At the end of the challenge period, Vault Funder evaluates the trader's performance. If the trader meets all the required criteria, they are eligible to receive funding from Vault Funder.

Funding: Once approved, traders receive a funded trading account from Vault Funder with the specified capital size they applied for. Traders can then trade this account and receive a share of the profits they generate, with Vault Funder taking a percentage as a fee.
